Illiquid stocks drive activity...

Weakness on the ZSE continued unabated with the Industrial Index shedding 0.38pts or 0.29% to 130.56pts as desperate sellers gave in to lower bids. Highlighting the declines was DELTA that lost 0.30% to $0.8200 with previously seen demand in the stock vanishing. Investors might be watching the stock from the sidelines ahead of its 11 November 2015 interims presentation. Other losers were in currently highly volatile OLD MUTUAL that gave up 0.71% to $2.2083, TURNALL which retreated 5.26% to $0.0090, HIPPO that fell 6.67% to $0.3500 and TSL that slumped 7.25% to $0.1600. Mitigating the declines were INNSCOR that added 0.83% to $0.6050, BARCLAYS which rose 0.93% to $0.0435 and ARISTON that jumped 9.52% to $0.0023, with firm bids remaining in the trio. There was no movement in Minings with the index closing the week at 23.49pts with no trades taking place in the sector.

Shares traded grew 161.61% to 1.23mn which culminated into aggregated value of $144,881 and doubled from yesterday's level. Worth noting were the leading volumes contributions from illiquid stocks TSL (64.95%), ARISTON (15.59%) and TURNALL (9.28%) with a combined contribution of 89.82% whilst 88.35% of turnover came from TSL alone. Additionally, local participation was pronounced on both the buy and sell side, almost constituting the entire trades of the day as the market was devoid of foreign investors. External purchases were a mere $116.00 and disposals a sickly $50.00.
